

Victorian Pharmacotherapy Area-Based Networks

Background

The use of pharmacotherapy treatment has become established in Australia and many other parts of the world as an effective treatment for opioid dependence. Pharmacotherapy represents an important part of the Victorian Government's community response to the treatment of drugs and alcohol in the state.

The Victorian pharmacotherapy system is a community-based model where medical professionals and pharmacists work together to make pharmacotherapy for opioid dependence available in the community.

In 2014, five area-based pharmacotherapy networks were established to facilitate localised approaches in connecting care, driving best practice and improving health and wellbeing outcomes for opioid dependent patients.

Service objectives

Each of the five Pharmacotherapy Networks will support health professionals (general practitioners, pharmacists and allied health clinicians) to prevent, identify and treat opioid dependence throughout the state.

The Networks will identify and provide local solutions to service need in their Area, work with other services to form partnerships and referral pathways, facilitate ongoing training for pharmacotherapy providers and provide access for complex clients to Addiction Medicine Specialists.
